Call for Papers

Bringing together the latest developments in fibre research with a unique networking opportunity at the 2021 PTS Fibre Symposium!

Lignocellulosic fibre materials from wood and non-wood sources play an increasing role in the development of a global and carbon dioxide neutral bioeconomy. Growing markets in the global packaging, health, mobility and construction sector offer manifold opportunities for introducing new processes and materials based on lignocellulosic fibres for designing the future. The PTS Fibre Symposium will aim on connecting people all around the world working in those fields. It will be held from November 23rd-24th 2021 in Radebeul near Dresden as a hybrid event with more than 100 expected international participants!

Please share your experience with successful collaboration, new products, solved problems in your field or a development story. We are looking for talks from fibre and paper manufacturers, machinery suppliers, measurement and quality control suppliers, chemical industry and research institutes.

Submissions should cover the following topics:

- Markets and Life cycle Assessments for fibre based materials
- The future role of lignocellulosic fibres in biorefinery concepts
- Innovative concepts for pulping, bleaching, stock preparation, fibre moulding and papermaking
- Fibre modification for enhancing properties
- Alternative fibres, functional fillers and additives
- Energy efficiency
- Novel methods for the characterization of fiber and paper properties

Submission & Format:

- Submission until 31.05.2021
- Meaningful summaries in English
- Conference language: English
- Maximum one DIN-A4 page
- Indication of authors and companies involved
- All speakers participate in the two-day event free of charge!
